While crowds were watching the buletin board in front of the Pulltzer Building shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon Henry Thompson, an aged man, came along and in a loud voice began to vilify the memory of the late President McKinley.

He had scarcely uttered a dozen words pefore he was surrounded by a threatening crowd.

Violent hands were about to be laid officer employed to guard the entrance and first floor of the Pulitzer Building stepped in and arrested Thompson.

The officer took Thompson to the Centre Street Court, where Magis rate Olmstel was on the bench.

Thompson said he had no home. He was charged with disorderly conduct and sent to Blackwell's Island for a month.

The crowd scattered and Barretta took shelter behind an "L" pillar, at the same time producing a revolver even larger and shinler than that of Cantara. The latter in the mean time had sought the shelter of another pillar about fifty feet away from Barretta. Whenever Barretta poked his head out to take aim, Cantara took a shot at him and vice versa. The bullets landed all over the neighborhood, but did no damage. In all about a dozen shots were fired.

Then came Sergt. Bulser, of the Atlantic Avenue Station, who had been eating his dinner in his home nearby. The shots had disturbed his meal and he felt angry abut it, so he arrested both of the bloodthirsty duellists and took them to the station house.

Each made a charge against the other and both were locked up.
